Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom is urging Louisiana residents to use caution when burning outdoors as dry conditions continue throughout much of the state.

Odom is sending this warning especially to people living in parishes in the Southeast, Southwest and Northwest portions of the state.

“Conditions east of the Mississippi River are the worst we have in the state. It is imperative that everyone realizes that one simple act of carelessness could lead to huge amounts of destruction and even loss of life,” Odom said. Some areas are seeing twice as many fires this year than in previous years due to dry conditions and fire fuel levels.

People living in and around critical areas of the state are asked to use extreme caution during supervised outdoor burning. But, Odom also warned of unintentional human errors that often lead to out of control wildfires.

“What most people don’t realize is that it’s not just the campfires and trash burns that start wildfires, it’s careless mistakes like throwing a cigarette out of a car window into the dry, grassy median that know one thinks about,” Odom added.

“Last year, we even had incidents where people were hauling their barbecue pits down the highway and the fires re-ignited sending sparks and flames burning down the roadside.”

Odom said his department’s forestry office will continue to monitor conditions across the entire state, and if improvement is not seen in coming days some localized burn bans may be necessary.

Commissioner Bob Odom and Andrew Smiley, Director of Red Stick Farmers Market in Baton Rouge discuss the success of local Farmer’s Market prior to Commissioner Odom ringing the “Bell” officially opening the Summer season of the Market in Baton Rouge. (Farmer’s Markets are opening throughout the state. See page 7 for a list of Farmer’s Markets.)

“got milk” Dairy Month marks 64th year

Go ahead. Gulp it down. Delicious, right? You bet. Cold, refreshing milk always hits the spot.

It’s June Dairy Month, and to celebrate, your fridge should be packed with delicious dairy products. June has marked an annual salute to America’s dairy farmers since 1937, when grocer organizations sponsored “National Milk Month.” Two years later, the observation became known as dairy month, promoting the consumption of all dairy foods. Today, we are celebrating thousands of dairy farm families with the famous “got milk?®” slogan.

Milk and milk products are great nutrient packages of nine essential vitamins and minerals, including calcium, potassium, riboflavin, phosphorus, vitamins A, D and B-12, and protein. A glass of milk or a slice of cheese is good nutrition for your body. Providing 72 percent of the calcium available in the American diet, dairy products are what dietitians call nutrient-dense foods, containing an abundance of vitamins and minerals per calorie. But that’s not all.

Calcium is best known for building strong bones and teeth, however this mighty mineral also helps with other things. Calcium also plays a major part in preventing the crippling bone disease osteoporosis later in life and can help prevent certain cancers, including colon cancer. Recent evidence shows milk consumption may help control weight. And low-fat dairy products may play a crucial role in controlling high blood pressure thanks to the eating plan Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension, which advocates three low-fat dairy products and eight to 10 fruits and vegetables daily.

Milk is not just milk anymore. With several varieties to suit the tastes of practically everyone, you can find a flavor that fits you. Chocolate, strawberry and banana available in single-serve, plastic containers add a new twist to milk.

When it comes to taste, nothing comes close to the refreshment of an ice-cold glass of milk. Nothing but milk goes better with hot, gooey, homemade chocolate chip cookies, a peanut butter and jelly sandwich, or mom’s fresh baked apple pie? This June Dairy Month and all year long, make sure you’ve always “got milk®” on hand by keeping your refrigerator stocked with plenty of milk and other dairy products.

“got milk?” Sorting fact from fiction

Myth: Dairy products cause heart disease

Fact: There are a number of factors that contribute to heart disease. While high blood cholesterol level and obesity are risk factors, and both can be caused by too many high fat foods, most fat in the diet comes from foods outside of the Milk Group such as salad dressings and pastries. Low-fat and fat-free dairy products are heart-healthy foods, having little fat and few calories. In fact, the American Heart Association endorses fat-free and low-fat milk.

June is Dairy Month in Louisiana

Dairy Production Facts:

The state's total milk production in 2000 was 81,976,744 gallons.

Louisiana had 468 commercial dairy farms in 2000.

The state had 58,000 milk cows in 2000.

A typical dairy herd in Louisiana had 124 cows last year.

Dairy herds in Louisiana produced an average of 1,413 gallons of milk for each cow in 2000.

Louisiana had seven fluid milk processing plants last year.

In 2000, dairy cows in Louisiana produced an average of 4.6 gallons of milk a day. To produce this much milk, a cow consumes 35 gallons of water, 20 pounds of grain and concentrated feeds, and 35 pounds of hay and silage.

The average value of a day's milk is about $8.40 per cow. It takes $4.50 for the feed, $1.60 for other supplies and $2.10 for building and overhead to produce that milk, leaving an estimated 20 cents for labor and other investment expenditures.

The average cost of a cow in Louisiana was $1400 in 2000.

The top five ranking dairy parishes in the state based on milk production as of December 2000 are Tangipahoa, Washington, DeSoto, St. Helena and Beauregard.

Dairy is good for you:

Dash to the supermarket! A recent study in the New England Journal of Medicine confirms Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension (DASH)—a diet that includes three servings of low-fat dairy foods, eight to 10 servings of fruits and vegetables, and low sodium intake-may help reduce the risk of high blood pressure as much as some medications.

Gulp it down. Teens need to drink milk when bones are in their most active growth phase. During the teen years, nearly 20 percent of adult height is added. Teens should drink four glasses of milk every day because it helps bones grow strong and healthy.

Cheesy! With more than 200 varieties of domestic cheese available, the possibilities are endless!

Cheese is a delicious and versatile food. Experiment with cheese in different ways, including cooking with cheese, pairing cheese with fruits and vegetables and/or crackers, and eating cheese by itself. Cheese makes meals more satisfying and enjoyable.

Don't deny yourself! Being lactose intolerant doesn't mean you can't enjoy delicious treats such as milk shakes and ice cream. Lactose intolerant people can still enjoy two cups of milk daily without discomfort, reported an American Journal of Clinical Nutrition study.

Confused about chocolate milk? Nutritionists say chocolate milk provides the same amount of nutrients as white milk does, which are calcium, protein and vitamin D, to name a few. Chocolate milk contains about the same amount of sugar as a glass of orange juice.

A whole lotta chocolate. A handy way to satisfy a chocolate craving and still eat healthfully is by drinking chocolate milk. A glass of low-fat chocolate milk has only 160 calories and 2.5 grams of fat but has 30 percent of daily calcium requirements.
